One of the most immediate and impactful ways is by adopting a plant like a radish. Adopting a radish from Karyashree is a great way to help plant a garden for a family in need of food and fresh water. Some people may ask why we would give a radish to a family in need of food and water. We say, radish is a good-for-you, non-hybrid, fast-growing plant that is low maintenance and easy to grow. It will last a few weeks in your garden and provide fresh food for your family. A Garden in the Sky Karyashree is a non-profit started by college students who saw a need and responded by starting their own non-profit. Karyashree is a pilot program in the western part of India that teaches women to grow their own food and water. They start with a garden in the sky by building a large greenhouse and installing a system of terracotta tubes to hold the water. When the women are ready to start planting their garden, they install a greenhouse and learn how to grow and harvest the plants. The women then train to be organic farmers and hire a team of workers to help them grow the plants. The men 2d92ce491b
