Desktop Wallpaper Calendar [Mac/Win] [March-2022]

Desktop Wallpaper Calendar is the first and only desktop calendar to offer you a variety of wallpapers from various categories. More importantly, the sensitivity for  $\text{Eu}^{3+}$  ions showed a drastic decrease when \*ca.\*  $10^4$  counts/s were required, being of the order of  $10^2$  to  $10^3$  counts/s for solution-grown samples. In our opinion, this sensitivity decrease is probably a consequence of the presence of defects in the nanotube network. This interpretation is supported by a recent work on solution-grown Nb<sub>2</sub>O<sub>5</sub> films, in which it is shown that Nb<sub>2</sub>O<sub>5</sub> tubes are characterized by a high concentration of defects due to the high probability of removal of O from the tube during the MOCVD growth[@b22]. Light-dependent current in RGO/Eu-TCSC sensors

----- In order to check the functionality of RGO/Eu-TCSC sensors for the detection of erbium ions, we firstly prepared GO paper-like electrodes from the RGO matrix. These electrodes were obtained by a simple filtration process through polycarbonate membranes with pore size of 0.2  $\mu\text{m}$ . SEM images of both GO and RGO electrodes deposited on a silicon wafer are shown in Figure 4{ref-type="fig"}).

The presence of RGO layers in the GO paper-like electrodes was evidenced by the high resolution TEM image (Figure 4a{ref-type="fig"}) and their electrochemical behavior was studied by cyclic voltammetry.

Voltammograms obtained for the GO paper-like electrode, using an NO<sub>2</sub>-electrolyte in air atmosphere, are presented in Figure 4b{ref-type="fig"}. These voltammograms clearly show a pair of oxidation and reduction peaks and no electrochemical activity was observed for fresh electrodes.
