Keymacro is an advanced and easy-to-use application to create macros for Windows and Linux, based on keystroke recording.

This tool allows to record any combination of keystrokes, or mouse clicks, while in any application and at any place of your choice. You may record a single keystroke or a continuous session. Keymacro allows you to set any number of repeat options for each key, including the entire session, daily, weekly, monthly, or every time the application is launched. You may also indicate the number of keystrokes to be recorded for each option. In addition, you can set a delay between keystrokes to avoid the system sounds, then modify the recording duration and the stop button. Keymacro's macro interface is very simple, intuitive and user friendly. It is just a single window where you need to set the settings for the session, then click the Start button. You may then set any keyboard or mouse command as a macro. You may specify multiple actions, one action for each macro (with or without arguments), such as: Open a file or URL in a default web browser, a text editor, email client or any application. Copy any line of a file to the clipboard. Select the text from any line of a file, then paste it into a different file or into any other application. Filter a directory content, based on specified conditions, then copy the matching files. Record the keyboard strokes with any key combination, including the Windows key. Browse a website and copy any URL to the clipboard. Run any command on any application, specifying the command with arguments. Use the Control key to assign keyboard shortcuts to macro keys. Use Mouse Keys to assign mouse buttons to macro keys. Interact with the mouse by dragging it to perform actions.

Save the macros to be automatically triggered by the mouse button or keyboard combination. Keymacro allows you to choose among several macros by clicking on the macro name.
