A: What you are talking about, is something called a "mail merge". Here is a link to a Wikipedia entry that talks about it. There are a number of software tools to perform the merge. The one that I am most familiar with is called "Dynamic Data Exchange" or DDE. If you have a form, you could import it into a "pdf forms" program and then edit the import so that it will save it as a "form" as opposed to a "generic" pdf. You would then have a file that you could simply mail to your customer. If you did have the "form" in an editable file, you could make changes after sending it, print it again, etc. import Vue from 'vue'; import Router from 'vue-router'; Vue.use(Router); export const router = new Router({
