However, those who want a more thorough understanding of the features available to them should know the tool well. ## GIMP GIMP is another free and powerful image manipulation tool, like Photoshop. It is similar to Photoshop in that it uses a layer-based editing system, but it differs in a number of areas. GIMP offers three ways to create and edit an image: * Raster-based editing (also known as editing with pixels or pixel-based editing) * Vector-based editing (also known as editing with vectors or path-based editing) * Brush-based editing (also known as editing with brushes or brush-based editing) GIMP has more features to support less powerful users and novice users than Photoshop, but it does have some user-friendly features that make it easier to use for basic editing functions. * GIMP Development Details: * `www.gimp.org/features/release_notes.html` (gu) GIMP is relatively easy to learn, but it is not as robust as Photoshop, especially when it comes to filters and batch editing. ## Other Image Manipulation Tools The features and interface of Photoshop and GIMP are similar, but they are not exactly the same. If you're looking to get serious about digital image manipulation, you may want to look at alternatives. ## Paint Shop Pro Paint Shop Pro was among the first image editing software. The Brush Tool Brushes can be used in four main ways:Intracytoplasmic sperm injection. Intracytoplasmic sperm injection (ICSI) is a technique used for assessing oocyte viability, fertilization and embryo development, and for selecting the type of pre-implantation embryo. ICSI is a procedure for the injection of one sperm into a single oocyte, which has been shown to improve the chance of fertilizing oocytes in patients with male factors. ICSI involves the injection of sperm directly into the oocyte cytoplasm after the oocyte has been denuded of its surrounding cumulus cells. The technique was first used in 1990 and has rapidly gained acceptance throughout the world. Over 200,000 cycles of ICSI have been performed, more than 50% of them as in-vitro fertilization, with excellent results. It has been used for patients with male factor infertility, who have more sperm than mature oocytes, or for fertilization of oocytes from which matured sperm have been collected. The technique is not widely used in the US, but is gaining wide acceptance in Europe. Many patients with borderline semen parameters are undergoing ICSI. Such patients have lower fertilization and clinical pregnancy rates following conventional in-vitro fertilization with less mature oocytes. Therefore, ICSI may be useful for these patients. The procedure is performed in the IVF laboratory by injecting sperm into an immature oocyte at the germinal vesicle stage. The protocol and clinical studies involving ICSI have been reviewed. However, not all experts agree with the procedure or protocol. This book will present and discuss the latest developments in ICSI.Q: To find: $\sum_{n=1}^{\infty}[\frac{1}{2}(2^n-1)+(2^n-1)-\frac{1}{3}(2^n-1)]$ I have been unable to find the summation in the title. Please help. A: Your sum is the alternating sum $\sum_{n=1}^\infty \left[\frac12(2^n-1)-\frac13(2^n-1)\right]$ Note that $\frac12(2^n-1)-\frac13(2^n-1)=\frac12(1)$ for

Q: Google Maps API always shows 0.0 when i want specific Latitude and Longitude I'm trying to get the Value of my Lat and Longitude and I do it like this: var latlng = location.getLatLng(); And now i want to convert the latlng.toUrlValue() into a string. What i do is this: var latlng = location.getLatLng(); latlng = latlng.toUrlValue(); var latString = latlng; var longString = latlng; This works like a charm, but if I want to get a Lat and Long Value from a specific address like this: var latlng = new google.maps.LatLng(52.86, 13.5); var marker = new google.maps.Marker({position: latlng}); Then I get a Lat and Long value like this: var latString = latlng.toUrlValue(); var longString = latlng.toUrlValue(); But the result is always 0.0 when i try to convert the latlng.toUrlValue() into a string. So i'm wondering what I'm doing wrong? The problem seems to be in the specific addresses, because if i want to get a lat and long value from the UK for example (51,5) then everything works fine. Anyone has an idea what the problem is and how i can solve it? Thanks in advance! A: You are getting strange results because you are not specifying proper top-level domain. See this map example for the same set of data: The common practice is to use the IP address of the server. If you are using the IP address, you need to specify it in the URL, so the ip address and port is the top-level domain: If you are using the location of the user, then you need to use the absolute URL of the server: With
