The Ottawa Senators announced today that the team has acquired defenceman Chris Wideman from the San Jose Sharks in exchange for forward Curtis Lazar. Wideman, 25, has appeared in 126 career NHL games with Ottawa, Nashville and Vancouver, recording 24 points (10-14=24). He was selected by San Jose in the second round, 44th overall, at the 2010 NHL Draft. Lazar, 23, has appeared in four career NHL games with the Sens after spending time with the Tucson Roadrunners of the AHL. The Senators close the regular season tomorrow night at home against the Montreal Canadiens. Puck drop at 7:30pm.

Q: Is there a single place I can find all of the events in a game? I'm working on a very basic game in JavaScript, and I want to list the different events on the stage. Since event lists are not allowed to be placed on the stage, I need to do it somewhere else. I was thinking that I should have a list of all events, and then have a function to add them, but that seems like a waste to me. So, the question is: Is there a site or list that I can use to get all of the events in a game? The order doesn't matter, since I don't think it will be used often.

A: There is a great post by Kevin and Dev, regarding this issue. In short, it seems that `addEventListener` is what you're looking for.

We hope you weren't too upset about Republicans' new health care plan, because those who actually used it are. And not because they live with a chronic pain, illness or disability. No, they're upset because they count on Medicaid for their well-being. And it doesn't take much to work out what's wrong with their latest effort to reinstate a tax on Medicaid benefits. Medicaid, of course, is the federal-state health care program for the poor and disabled. It was conceived in 1965, the same year the Medicare program for the aged was launched. In both cases, it was a way to make people's lives better by expanding access to services. But, as ever, the transition to the Affordable Care Act has been messy. Under former President Bill Clinton, the cost of the program grew by 51% and is now 23%

Q: Angularjs click event not working in chrome I am using angularjs and i am trying to fire a click event when a link is pressed, the problem is that it works fine in firefox but not in chrome. I am not using any directives or plugins. Can anyone provide me with a solution, or even better a reason for this. This is the html that i have: Click And this is the app: `var app = angular.module("myApp", []); app.controller("myCtrl", function($scope) { $scope.test = function() { alert("clicked"); }; });` This is what i get in chrome: Chrome gives this error: `TypeError: undefined is not a function` This is what i get in firefox: Firefox gives this error: `TypeError: $(...).click is not a function`

A: This happens because Chrome checks the checks for the click event to be bound on the document object. The document object however has the `method.click`, however it is not a function. You can use this workaround: `document.querySelector("a.test").addEventListener("click", function(){ alert("clicked"); });`

EDIT This seems to be a Chrome issue, and it was closed as Won't Fix. According to the comments, adding it as a Chrome flag fixed the problem. For future reference (as it helps), it is Chrome feature called "Style Precedence".

Ratings: Nice to Know: Lima Free is an excellent option for fans of the General Lee, and when combined with the Lee Rebirth model kit, you'll be able to truly make your dream car a reality. Videos & Trailers: The plastic parts of Lima's kit will be easy to snap together, so you don't have to worry about screwing up. It's another reason why I really like Lima's products. A ton of detail work
