Wood Green railway station served the area of Wood Green in north London from 1863 to 1964. History The station opened on 1 October 1863, when the Great Northern Railway (GNR) opened its line from London St Pancras to the then terminus at Liverpool Street. The station was renamed from "Wood Green and Whetstone" to Wood Green on 1 August 1864. The station was closed on 9 October 1964. It reopened as Wood Green Central in 2008 but was closed again on 24 June 2013 after the London Borough of Brent decided not to renew the station's lease, although all trace of it had disappeared in 2016 and there were plans to redevelop the land next to the station, with new flats replacing the station as part of the Millennium Village development. FIFA (Fédération Internationale de Football Association) is the governing body for international soccer. Every year, they pick which players make the final teams, who plays against each other and how the games are played. Games are governed by their own rules, which include things like how a team can score a goal, get a red card, or get a penalty shot. FIFA matches are run by two different groups of people, neither of whom are affiliated with FIFA. The first are "clubs" and they are the people running the teams, coaches and training. The second are "teams". These are the folks who play on the pitch in the game and represent each team. A team consists of 12 people, except for the goalkeepers, who are one person. These people are called players. FIFA chooses who plays for each team, who runs its official website, and who runs the official twitter. Next, the teams play against each other for the world championship. Then, the clubs play against each other. What is the World Cup? Each year, the soccer governing body, FIFA, puts on a World Cup that is "the world's biggest and best soccer competition". You can join it, or play in it, by becoming a team. One person can be a goalkeeper, but one person needs to be a midfielder. One person needs to be a defender and that's it. Each team consists of 20 people, but only 12 are eligible to play. The other 8 are "suspended" for things like being a police officer. You also need to have an official stadium to play in. FIFA only lets you play in your own stadium as a tournament, not in your own country like a regular league. So you need to buy your own stadium. Next, the biggest teams play in the most prestigious tournaments in the world. And then the clubs play in a league. This is the year-long competition to see who is best. This is the FIFA World Cup. You can join any of the teams from around the world, representing different countries. You can get emails, click on websites, and you might even have a Twitter account. But you can't actually play the game. Only players from the countries that you represent are allowed to do that. To play, you need to know which teams you want to play for and which clubs. After that, you need to
