Congenital mesoblastic nephroma (CMN) is a rare, slow-growing, benign, and well-differentiated neoplasm. We report five cases of CMN. Four were diagnosed during the neonatal period and the other postnatally. The diagnosis was made prenatally in two cases, with diagnoses made on ultrasonography in the other two cases. The lesion was excised and all patients were alive. There is no treatment other than observation. However, patients with an antenatally detected lesion and children with a postnatally detected lesion should be followed.Q: Lucene Query on ElementID I am not sure what is the best way to run a Lucene query on a ElementID.
