Download and Install FRAPS For Windows After the successful installation, FRAPS will generate a user name and password which must be used to access the program with the given password. After the FRAPS is launched, you can change the monitor output with the options under the heading "Output" in the settings. FRAPS offers three different modes to choose from: Guided, Programmable, and Free. Free mode is used for capturing gameplay video without the need to adjust the game settings beforehand. The other two modes require you to configure your settings first. Recording the video is done as follows: With Guided, FRAPS will place a tick on the application you want to capture a screenshot of, select the capture area, and press the Start button. FRAPS will capture the screenshot of the selected area and output it in the default video device. Programmable mode enables you to select an area with custom settings and adjust the camera for a perfect picture. You can select the area with the mouse and drag to define the rectangle for the selected area. Next, you can adjust the quality of the picture to either Full screen or window, choose which output video device you want to use (Internal display device or VGA for example), the screen resolution, mouse sensitivity and many other options. When you are done, click on the button to start the capture and a new window will appear with the picture in the preview. You can select "Screen" or "Video" as the output device to save the captured picture to. The program will start preparing the picture by capturing and adjusting the picture while it is showing you a preview. When it is done, a dialogue will inform you that the picture is saved and you can select the option to open the file or save it to the specified folder. If you are capturing video with the Free mode, you can choose any area of the screen to capture the video. You can select Full screen or Window, 1cdb36666d

The method of updating the DataTemplate I use is: public void UpdateTemplate(DataTemplate dataTemplate, FrameworkElement context) { UIElement element = context as UIElement; if (element!= null) element.Resources.MergedDictionaries.Add(dataTemplate.Resources); } The part I don't understand is the "context as UIElement" part. I don't understand why I cannot get the desired behavior using a FrameworkElement, as all my viewModels extend FrameworkElement. Is my understanding wrong?

Do I really need to change the DataTemplate type to be a FrameworkElement, to be able to update it at runtime? A: It depends on what you are trying to achieve. However, if you want to get access to the DataContext,
