Q: Django 1.7 view cannot find model fields defined in a different file (can only find attributes) I'm trying to write a form with a model's fields defined in a different file. I thought I'd go by creating a separate file with only the form fields and including it in the same file as the model. This does not work and I can't figure out why. The Django debugger is not showing any source within views.py. Here is a simplified version of my models.py, fields.py and views.py files:

models.py class User(models.Model): email = models.EmailField(unique=True) def __unicode__(self): return unicode(self.email) class Status(models.Model): change_list = models.CharField(max_length=50) fields.py class StatusForm(forms.ModelForm): class Meta: model = Status fields = ['change_list'] views.py from models import User, Status from fields import StatusForm def add_status(request, user_id): if request.method == 'POST': user_id = request.POST['user_id'] status = User.objects.get(pk=user_id) form = StatusForm(request.POST, instance=status) if form.is_valid(): instance = form.save(commit=False) instance.save()

FUT is the new way to play and win through the creation and management of your very own Ultimate Team (FUT). Build a squad of your favorite real-life and FIFA stars, then play in tournaments, leagues and more. As a Manager - Create your Ultimate Team to compete in the most popular modes of Play Anywhere and across console including FIFA Ultimate Team (FUT) and Manager. Select from over 7,300 real-world players and more than 1,400 star-power, skill-based animations that are brought to life with an all-new Physics engine. As a Player - In Player Career, experience over 140 game modes including solo, co-op, online, private matches and more. Your skills and mobility set you up to unlock the full potential of The Journey. NEIGHBORHOOD (Unsurprisingly, almost no time is spent playing on the pitch, which is almost certainly for the best) I don't know why FIFA felt the need to include the option to play up to "neighborhood" level, but they did. It exists in fact, and you can't ignore it or even leave it off -- you'll eventually end up with two "Neighborhoods" if you don't shut them off. (Honestly, FIFA barely has the resources to properly implement a neighborhood into the game -- they're one of the most basic aspects of the game that you can't play, and yet they have time and money to put on neighborhood-level minigames. It just doesn't add up.) These are the most popular modes, and they're pretty much on par with the PC/PS3 versions. The core gameplay is the same on Xbox -- this is basically the "Main Menu" mode of the game. Having said that, I'd actually recommend checking out the PlayStation 3 version for the most part, because the graphics are much better and it's actually the PS3's built-in store. The game is as enjoyable as ever for those who can't be bothered to grind out the time and effort for multiple hours a day. On PC however, the game is really made for split-screen play. It's beautiful, and the only drawback is that most PC games are very slow on offline. This game runs quite well, and I got my split-screen friends into FIFA at the time, and we had a blast. (Some got angry at first for not having the advanced options,

GENERAL For optimal performance, you will need to make sure that you have a recent graphics card and operating system For a secure experience, a dedicated graphics card with at least 64MB of video RAM is required We also recommend that you have the latest Windows updates, driver updates, and power management tools to keep your system up to date For best performance, run multiple Steam clients in parallel. This can be done easily with TeamViewer by using the Remote Control option. You may experience stuttering when playing on older graphics card with low video memory
