Q: Flurry Event and Tracking I want to integrate Flurry tool in my iPhone App. I want to use flurry to track which buttons in my app are clicked and what time a button is clicked. I am new to flurry. So is there a way to do this. Is there any sample code to solve this. A: Flurry is very easy to integrate. All you need to do is to create an account, and then log in your app by setting the following to true (replace 'XXXX' with your application id): [[FLURRY_DEFAULT_PARAMETERS sharedInstance] setIsDev:YES]; After that you need to call Flurry to register the application. Flurry will register your application and you will get a unique call back URL. To track the application events you can use a combination of method - (void)applicationDidBecomeActive:(UIApplication *)application and - (void)applicationDidEnterBackground:(UIApplication *)application What you do with those calls is of course up to you. 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an optical element and an optical system. 2. Related Background Art There is known an optical system provided with a lens arranged between a light source and an image formation surface in order to enlarge and shape light from the light source in accordance with an optical action using refractive power or diffraction action. For example, in U.S. Pat. No. 5,748,371, a light source is arranged at an incidence side of a lens facing the incidence side so as to be located at a position which is not always conjugate with an imaging plane when viewed from an observation side of the lens, and the lens is formed having a diffraction function. Further, the lens is formed, for example, into a cylindrical shape, and a half-cylindrical diffraction grating is formed at a region having a predetermined range of incident angles. As a result, a cylindrical diffraction grating is formed at a region having a predetermined range of incident angles when viewed from the light source side. An application example of the optical element includes an optical system provided with a cylindrical lens, a lens having a refracting power and a diffraction grating element, which are arranged between a light source and an image formation plane in

Listen to the Department of Housing and Urban Development's (HUD) announcement that it has selected the first three recipients of the first round of $3 billion in funding. HUD announced the first round recipients last week. Since then, it has been trying to figure out how to distribute the money. Because each of the projects will be small, the winner will receive their money quickly. But this round will be different from future rounds. A new approach. HUD Administrator Audrey Edmonson says in the first round, the administration will focus on innovation. HUD will work with each recipient to come up with solutions. The three winners are: * 1 million housing vouchers from the American Community Housing Trust to rebuild and modernize housing for low-income and formerly homeless families in the Southeast and Midwest. * Small businesses fund grants, mentorship and other benefits to small businesses in the Midwest. This round is specifically for small businesses in Chicago, which has been hit hard by a slew of businesses closures. *The Preservation Assistance for Communities in Transition (PACT) program, which will focus on revitalizing distressed inner city neighborhoods. HUD is still working on the program criteria to determine which projects will get a "green light."
