Filter Gallery This is a type of toolbox in Photoshop. Although you might be tempted to use some filters automatically, try not to. It is much better to edit the effects manually. In Photoshop, Filter is one of the most powerful tools. All the effects and filters you see in your everyday Photoshop can be categorized into five categories. The Filter Gallery is a link to the five filter types. The five types of filters are: 1. Blur 2. Color 3. Grain 4. Halftone 5. Spot As with many other tools in Photoshop, these filters can be found in the Filter Gallery. You can download the Filters for Photoshop CS5 here: 2.The Color Filter This filter can be used to manipulate the color of an image, allowing you to change the overall color of the image. The Color Filter can be used on any layer. Click on the box icon to open the Filter Manager. In the menu, you will see a variety of filters which allow you to change the color of your image. Use the sliders to adjust the color or brightness of your image. The Amount slider allows you to control how much of the RGB color the image receives. You can also change the hues and saturations of the image by using the color wheel. When the filter is complete, press OK to apply it to the image. 3.The Grain Filter The Grain filter is best used for images that are too digital. Use it to add a more realistic look to your images. The Grain filter allows you to increase the graininess of your digital images. Use the slider to increase the amount of graininess in the image, and the Amount slider to control how much you increase it. As with the Color Filter, click on the box icon to open the Filter Manager, and then adjust the Grain sliders. Press OK to apply the filter to the image. 4.The Halftone Filter This filter is not found in Photoshop's standard filter gallery, but is included in a number of free filters. The Halftone filter helps to remove the pattern from your digital image, making it look more realistic. By using the slider, you can control the level of detail you wish to use in your image. If you are using this filter, make sure to apply it to the image first, then the layer containing the
