" Mathematics: What Math Is to the Art of Design This museum has a million visitors a year. They need to be entertained. Visitors not only want to see art, they also want to enjoy themselves. The unique selling proposition of a museum is not to see art, but to be seen in the museum. And the best way to do that is by having some type of entertainment or aesthetic feeling for the visitor. After you have an attractive building, the trick is to make an interesting show inside. The message that you want to get across is: This is what the museum is all about. The way to do this is through appropriate art. In many cases, the art was chosen to be "in-your-face" to establish an emotional response. Think of a piece of art from the 19th century that is a realistic portrait of Napoleon. If you read about that particular painting, you would be embarrassed. The modern art gallery is the place to go to be in awe of the latest conceptual art exhibition. These type of museums are not about the art, but rather about the person showing off his or her own ideas. If you really want to get a younger crowd coming to a museum, you need to look at the way they think. A student group coming into the museum should have something to do. The art should represent contemporary ideas that the young audience would be familiar with. Like a student coming to a math class, a math professor would show them how to multiply by 3 or perform the Pythagorean The

Or, stated differently, if the plaintiff has no remedy under another provision of the Code because of an "extenuating or mitigating circumstance," the remedy is not to be found under Code section 995 but must be found in the terms of that other section. Finally, case law indicates that an action based on section 995 may be maintained. As one court explained, section 995 "must be satisfied before an action will be allowed...." (Ventura Aircraft Sales, Inc. v. Garlock, Inc. (1981) 122 Cal.App.3d 215, 222 [175 Cal.Rptr. 726].) Moreover, "In order for an action to be brought on a contract claim based on a mistake it is necessary for the plaintiff to allege and prove a state of facts which in law would justify his obtaining relief based on a mistake...." (Scott Co. v. Hudson (1961) 194 Cal.App.2d 407, 413 [15 Cal.Rptr. 261].)[7] *570 (6) As we have summarized, the parties have alleged facts in the defendants' motion that would be sufficient to support an action based on mistake. The primary question, then, is whether the facts stated in the answer, plus the supporting documentation, show the existence of the factual basis, in accordance with the pleading rule announced in Ventura Aircraft Sales, Inc. v. Garlock, Inc., supra, 122 Cal.App.3d 215. B. Facts Supporting A Cause of Action for Mistake As noted, the cause of action pleaded is based on a mistake. The parties have alleged the following facts: In 2004, Maria and Leonid were involved in a dispute over whether certain real property had been fraudulently deeded to their children, which issue arose over a proposed sale of property to the children. The disputed property was Maria's property. She was willing to sell but did not want to lose the children's real property she had inherited from her parents. The dispute involved a property referred to as 538 Goldenrod Street, which Maria's relatives had
