What's New in the Auto FTP Manager?

Description:LSU continues to press for perfection. Just how far could it go? LSU, the fourth-ranked team in the country, is 1-0 and already showed the ability to push the envelope in a 21-13 win over Mississippi State. In that game, the Tigers played without offensive guards Ben Panabaker and Jay Hayes, two of the team's top three scorers. Instead, rookie sensation Ja'Mion Scott was sent in, and he led the way with a 52-yard touchdown run. That set the bar awfully high for LSU. And expectations are now all the higher after beating Auburn in a 45-16 rout of the SEC's No. 3 team last week. But for all the hype, everything's still possible — even with a healthy trio of its top three offensive linemen. "We don't have to win the game with our offensive line," senior linebacker Devin White said. "We have to win the game at the end of the game, at the end of the season. We've got to win the games we lose. But we've got a really good offensive line that can help us win." LSU's power trio has played well all season. At this point, they're a strength of the team and something fans can probably be comfortable with. They're the main reason a loaded offense ranks in the top 10 in the country in scoring (41.7 ppg) and total offense (488.1 ypg). LSU features seven scholarship linemen on offense, including left tackle Greg Robinson and center Ryan Ramczyk, who has never missed a game in his three seasons with the Tigers. Yet with the return of D'Onta Foreman (hip surgery) and Stephen Sullivan (ankle injury), the group could be even better. "We've got a lot of guys that can step up," Ramczyk said. "Just because they aren't playing doesn't mean it's not in the repertoire of those guys. We've got a lot of people who can help us move the football. We've just got to find out which guy's going to step up and help us." LSU's offensive line is so good that it leads the SEC in sacks allowed (12.3 per game), total offense (224.5 yards), and rushing offense (183.5). But that's no shock to Stokes. He's coached at South Carolina — where he and
